Hey Doug, quick q for you, if an individual in Ottawa is off work because the business is closed due to the protests, I know the business would qualify because the area is still under lockdown but would the individual worker lockdown benefit as well?

So only if their employer was impacted by a lockdown restrictions (like a restaurant or a gym) AND they lost 50% of their income (like their boss reduced their hours) then they MAY be eligible. It's important that we're not definitive about them being eligible because sometimes the individual has something that prevents them from being eligible. Like one big one is that, to be eligible, you need to have earned $5000 in the last twelve months OR in 2021 OR in 2020. Someone who hasn't worked since 2015, for example, wouldn't be eligible for the lockdown benefit.

Got it ok thanks
